Farm Rescue Adds Nebraska to Service Area
North Dakota Nonprofit Expands Territory

HORACE, N.D., April 4, 2017 - Farm Rescue, a nonprofit organization that provides planting, harvesting or haying assistance free of charge to farm and ranch families who have experienced a major illness, injury or natural disaster, is expanding its operations to aid producers in the state of Nebraska. Farm Rescue is proud to announce haying assistance and hay hauling services to rural families in the Cornhusker State.

Farm Rescue began haying assistance services in 2012 and has steadily increased capacity to help more farm and ranch families throughout the region each year. The nonprofit organization now provides support in six states throughout the Midwest.

"We are pleased to offer haying assistance services to the hardworking farm and ranch families of Nebraska," said Bill Gross, Founder & President, Farm Rescue. "We have received an increasing number of applications from ranchers in recent years and plan to continue offering new services to ranchers in the future."

Farm Rescue is thankful to have strong support from businesses, foundations and individuals that share our vision of helping others during times of unexpected crises. The nonprofit organization, which operates primarily through the work of volunteers, still holds true to the founder's original goal of providing "Rescue Blessings" through a wholesome, patriotic and altruistic mission.

A special thank you goes out to CHS and the following sponsors for supporting our expansion into the state of Nebraska: RDO Equipment Company, AKE Safety Equipment, Avera, BNSF, Diversified Crop Insurance Services, Duratech Industries, Hefty Seed, Landoll, National Crop Insurance Services, RDO Truck Center, Stine Seed, Sheehan Mack, Wilson Trailer and Winfield United.
