On Friday, Aug. 5, Farm Rescue was at the Mark Marohl farm north of Sisseton to help him take out 300 acres of wheat. Mark is recovering from back surgery and could not do the work.

Farm Rescue is a non-profit organization based in Jamestown, ND. They plant and harvest crops free of charge for farm families that have suffered a major illness, injury or natural disaster. RDO Equipment of Moorhead, MN furnished Farm Rescue with a 9770 STS Bullet Roto John Deere combine.

Being a newspaper man, I don't get the opportunity to ride in one of these big machines. Well, as it was, Charlie Hardie of Wahpeton asked if I wanted to ride in the buddy seat, and I jumped at the chance.

Hardie has been giving his time for five years. As we were combining, Charlie told me he was 79 years old. He also told me he has a museum and, of course, it has many John Deere classic tractors available for viewing. Charlie's Green-Acres Museum is at 10090 178th Avenue SE, Fairmount, ND, phone 701-642-8358. Of course nothing runs like a Deere.

Hardie and I also talked about the changes in the agricultural world. He said he would not have thought that we could take out a hundred acres in a day.

His sidekick, Steve Bettenhausen of Valley City, has been doing this for two years. He helps with getting the machines ready, as he does the maintenance and gases the machines up. Bettenhausen said it is a joy just to see the smiles on the faces of the people they help.

Farm Rescue also took out some wheat for Dennis Hamling. He was injured when a machine fell on his ankle and foot.

Mark and Cindy Marohl would like to thank Farm Rescue for getting the grain out, and also a friend, Kipp Bredvik, who brought over his father's semi truck to help haul.

This is what it is all about... people helping people.

CLAIRE CITY BEAUTIFICATION PROJECTS

Although many rural towns are experiencing shrinking populations, the small town of Claire City continues to grow in population. With hard working city workers and residents, old buildings are being removed to make room for new residents to move in. As pictured, one of the projects involved the demolition of an old Presbyterian Church. Rein construction did the wrecking, and Mayor Schulz and others were on hand with assistance for fire control and other assistance. Claire City has also added an RV park recently and has cleared away bushes at the park as part of their beautification efforts.
